

Ralf Gladis, Founder and CEO

Ralf is the Co-Founder and CEO of the international Payment Service Provider Computop - the payment people, and non-executive Director at Computop, Inc in New York. In 2022, Ralf Gladis was appointed to the Digital Finance Forum, the expert commission of the German Ministry of Finance.

Computop Co-Founder

In 1993 Ralf and Frank Arnoldt, a fellow IT student, founded Computop and entered the e-commerce business in 1997. During the early years, strongly utilizing his technical background, Ralf was the architect of Computop Paygate, the company's payment platform, and was subsequently responsible for software development. Later, he focused on sales and marketing. In his current role, Ralf is responsible for the international expansion and strategic planning at Computop.

Today, with 170 employees, the company offers worldwide payment processing and fraud prevention to many large retailers and industrial companies. Computop processes transactions amounting to 33 billion USD per year.

Prior to founding Computop, Ralf developed databases, writing books and articles published by large IT editors.
